MUSICA INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP in Strasbourg

in collaboration with the Institute of Phonetics of the University

Musica workshops are open for choir conductors, librarians, publishers, composers...

A project to include the whole choral repertoire of the world into a single multilingual multimedia database.

Registrations are open!

REMINDER: MUSICA, AN INTERNATIONAL CHORAL MUSIC RESOURCE

Are you looking for 17th century German motets for 6 to 8 voices? Or a work for mixed chorus with string orchestra in English under 10 minutes in length, preferably from the 18th century? Musica, the International Choral Repertoire Database (<https://www.musicanet.org>), is a tool that can assist you in your search.

Including 200,000 titles, and growing, the database is currently searchable in four languages: English, French, German, and Spanish. In addition to standard bibliographic fields (composer, title, author of text, publisher, etc.), there are fields which identify the level of difficulty for conductors and for singers, voicing, instrumentation, country of the composer, century of composition, keywords, and many other variables, all of which can be used to yield to a precise relevant search.

ASSIST IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF MUSICA

The creation of a comprehensive choral resource that is international in scope and available worldwide is being reached through a cooperative collaboration of choral conductors, music librarians, publishers and composers. The idea of the Musica workshops is to bring them together for one week to share collegial time and to enter new choral repertoire into the database. The Musica team (all of its members choral conductors) is present to teach people how to input new data as well as how to use the power of the database for their own explorations of choral repertoire. Seminars are organized to try to find together solutions for unsolved questions about the database (such as semantic, translations, classification...).

The success of these workshops is due to several factors:

- Efficient way to enter a large amount of new data in a short amount of time.
- Working together brings the advantage of learning from each other.
- Working together brings the pleasure of learning new choral repertoire in impromptu sight-reading sessions, sharing jokes and stories and developing new friendships.
- Working in the master database with the Musica team at your disposal for advice on search techniques gives you an exceptional opportunity to increase your skills in database searching and expand your opportunities to find ideas for building future programs.

The international dimension of the project and its confrontation with different cultures leads to exciting work.

WHAT HAPPENS DURING A MUSICA WORKSHOP?

Describing a new score is done with score in hand, entering standard bibliographic data as well as musical information: key, level of difficulty for choir and for conductor, recording the correct pronunciation of the text (audio file), finding a good video, illustration of the piece, etc...

To do this, you will use the Musica7 management software, being connected to the master database of Musica. Later, you will be able to use this software from your location to continue the work with perfect knowledge of what to do, thanks to the workshop.

The first morning of the session is dedicated to discovering the database and receiving instructions on data entry. For the remainder of the week, you'll be entering new records, as well as having a chance to do your own research in the database; there may be some other special projects such as augmenting existing records for composers, or, for someone who has strong German, French, or Spanish language skills, providing translations for Musica's multilingual thesauruses.

Start of the Workshop: Monday, October 21, 2024, 2:00 pm

End of the Workshop: Saturday, October 26, 2024, noon

Generally, the schedule is defined collegially at the beginning of the session. Typically:

- in the morning, work from 9:00 am to 12:15 (coffee break around 11:00)
- lunch at 12:30
- work between 2:00pm and 6:00pm (coffee break around 4:00 pm)
or sightseeing of the region, if work in the evening
- dinner in the City Center
- free evening open, or going to a concert...

But as you are a volunteer, you are free to choose to spend time exploring the town, which is on UNESCO's World Heritage list, or doing research on the Internet or anything else.

What music will be entered? Participants can bring their own pieces to enter, or simply grab a stack of music proposed by Musica.

If this sounds like work, well, it is, sort of ... but it is also very satisfying. The participants of the previous workshops have enjoyed themselves so much ... that they come back regularly: Michel, Claude, Sébastien, Eric, Eberhard, Lysiane...! Jean Sturm, Executive Director of Musica International : office\(at\)musicanet.orgmusicanet.org), will be running this session; he has a very special sense of hospitality and a unique commitment to this project. He quickly helps to create an environment of friends working toward a common goal, so even the work is fun.

COST AND ACCOMMODATIONS

There is no tuition fee. You have only to cover your travel expenses and your food and accommodation.

The participants are invited to attend the workshop. If you are only able to attend a few days, you should prioritize the first few days in order to receive the basic information, which will be provided in the beginning of the workshop.

A certificate of attendance is delivered on request, and is equivalent to a participation to a Congress or an academic workshop, for instance, for which a mission can be easily obtained. Many choral music federations subsidize also the participation to Musica workshops.

If necessary, accommodation is provided at a hotel about 5-minute walk from the place where the workshop will be held (more information upon request):

A participation of 49€ per day is then requested, including accommodation and lunch. Dinner not included.

There are some possibilities to lower this price according to your personal situation.

For more information, please contact us at office@musicanet.org.

WHAT TO TAKE WITH YOU

- Bring your FAVORITE SCORES that are not in Musica yet. If you are a publisher, bring your publications.
- Take with you your favorite choral music CDs. They will be used to build "sound files" for the multimedia part of Musica.

AND... bring with you whatever is always MUCH appreciated from your country for socializing (for instance: wine from your country to taste, chocolate, sweets, etc...)!

HOW TO APPLY

There is no formal application process to attend a Musica workshop. If you think you'd like to join us, please contact the Musica team (office\(a\)musicanet.orgmusicanet.org)), and send a brief summary of your choral experience.
